

Past Simple Tense.

It is used to express an action that happened or completed in past, usually a very little time before speaking, or action which is just completed. Time of action is not specified in terms of long time ago or short ago but it make a sense that the action has done a little time ago. For example, a person says, "I watched a movie", it means the speaker of this sentence watched a movie a little time ago or little time ago in the same day, but it has no connection with present tense.
